Comments:

Hi, my name is Tyler Vance. I'm an avid snowmobiler, hiker and outdoorsman. I have the utmost respect for our public lands and care deeply about keeping our land open to the public and to shared use.

I looked over the public comments and I'm very concerned about the amount of people in support of Alt. D that almost all live in states other than Montana. Why are so many people that don't even live here trying to dictate how we can use our public lands? And who is influencing out of state people to make public comments ?

I would also like to know why there is not an alternative on the table that clearly opens more access to motorized and mechanized use. As a tax payer I pay for these public lands and so does the elderly and disabled. Limiting access by shutting out motorized and mechanized use does not represent the american people or people that live around here and recreate our forest.

All those out of state people commenting have been told to some way or another by fringe environmental organizations that have paid for targeted Facebook ads. I see it all the time on my timeline. Siding with the fringe environmentalist groups does not represent the general public or the people that actually recreate and use our public lands.

SHARE IT

Sincerely,

Tyler Vance
